18 A Special Evening with Elton John
It's Elton John as you've never seen him before—in a concert that includes classic tunes, personal favorites, and the hit single from his new album Made in England.

22 Visions of Pocahontas
"I've gone deeper with this character than with the Beast or with Aladdin or with Ariel," says Glen Keane, the veteran supervising animator charged with bringing the character of Pocahontas from the drawing table to the silver screen. "Every time I drew her, I came up with a different drawing. It was as if she were a real person." Disney's 33rd animated classic, Pocahontas debuts in theatres across the country this June 23.

A LETTER TO OUR SUBSCRIBERS

WHEN I SURVEY THE PAST DECADE HERE AT THE DISNEY CHANNEL, two things immediately come to mind. First is our never-ending quest to provide the highest quality entertainment for every member of your family. And second, the millions of people who, over the past 10 years, have welcomed us into their homes by joining our extended Disney Channel family.

I'm extremely proud of our efforts to entertain the whole family. Over the years The Disney Channel has presented the world television premieres of the great Disney animated classics, from Sleeping Beauty, Bambi, and 101 Dalmatians to The Little Mermaid, Beauty and the Beast, and Aladdin. But we've never been content to rest on our Disney heritage—I like to think that we've built on that tradition with a wealth of original programs. We've created series such as Adventures in Wonderland for preschoolers and the MMC for preteens. Our Disney Channel Premiere Films have ranged from broad comedy to Peabody Award-winning dramas such as The Ernest Green Story. Our award-winning and critically acclaimed music specials have brought you Billy Joel, James Taylor, and, coming on June 11, Elton John. Then there are two programs that occupy a very special place here at The Disney Channel.

These programs are our way of giving something back not only to our subscribers, but to our society, as well. They are The Walt Disney Company Presents the American Teacher Awards and Disney's Young Musicians Symphony Orchestra.

The Disney Channel is entering its sixth year of celebrating America's educators. We believe that the nation's teachers hold our society's future in their hands. And by producing a special program that honors young musicians—and serves as an introduction to music and arts appreciation—we hope to enrich and broaden the cultural expression of young people.

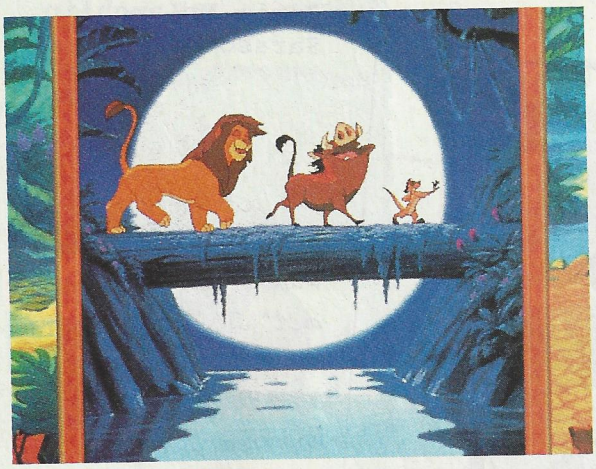

If you've detected a valedictory note in this issue's letter, I'd like to take this opportunity to inform you that I shall be leaving The Disney Channel to become Executive Vice President, Corporate Affairs of our parent company, The Walt Disney Company. But before I go on, I'd also like to tell you about an extremely important program that premieres on June 8. It's the documentary Anne Frank Remembered, an inspiring piece of filmmaking that reveals not only Anne Frank, the foremost victim and symbol of the Holocaust, but also Anne Frank, the teenage girl who was but one of countless millions to perish during civilization's darkest hour. I hope you and your family will watch this important, moving film together.

That said, I'd like to thank you for my wonderful tenure here at The Disney Channel. I shall miss the challenges and opportunities that the past years have offered. And I shall always remain a part of the extended Disney Channel family.

John F. Cooke
President of The Disney Channel

THE LION KING FOR MAC

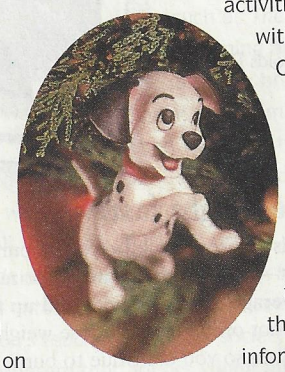

ON MAY 31, FAMILIES CAN RELIVE the magic of The Lion King with the release of the hit title Disney's Animated Storybook: The Lion King. in Macintosh CD-ROM.

Disney's Animated Storybook: The Lion King, designed for children ages three to nine, introduces a new dimension in storytelling with its interactive version of Disney's animated blockbuster. Combining the movie's dynamic storyline with Disney animation, music and innovation, Disney's Animated Storybook: The Lion King brings Simba's incredible journey to life in an action-packed reading environment that includes word-for-word narration, a "living" dictionary, clickables, and games.

This past Christmas, Disney's Animated Storybook: The Lion King (for Windows-DOS) dominated the sales charts as the #1 children's CD-ROM and it continues to top retail charts today. And look for new Disney Animated Storybooks throughout the year, including this summer's upcoming title, Winnie the Pooh and the Honey Tree.

NEWS FROM THE WALT DISNEY CLASSICS COLLECTION

THIS FALL, COLLECTORS will have a one-time opportunity to acquire a new, limited edition animation art sculpture from The Walt Disney Classics Collection during its first-ever National Open House Weekend on October 21 & 22. (The Walt Disney Classics Collection features hand-crafted porcelain sculptures of classic Disney characters.)

Lucky, the darling puppy from 101 Dalmatians (1961), will be the special sculpture offered exclusively at this two-day event hosted by hundreds of authorized WDCC dealers nationwide. Uniquely designed as both an ornament and a stand-alone sculpture, Lucky (suggested retail price: $40) comes with a red ribbon for hanging and a porcelain ottoman that props him in a pose reminiscent of his favorite activity in the original film—watching television.

The special Lucky offering is but one of the highlights of the National Open House Weekend. Other planned in-store activities include raffles and special gifts with any Walt Disney Classics Collection purchase. Collectors will also have the opportunity to participate in a national grand-prize drawing for a four-day trip to Walt Disney World Resort. Entry forms for the drawing can be found in a special eight-page, full-color brochure only available through participating dealers. For information on the Walt Disney Classics Collection dealer closest to you, call (800) 932-5749 (WDCLSIX).

A Special Edition of "Archives"

Disney archivist Dave Smith looks at the classic programs appearing on Disney Drive-In, which in July celebrates Disneyland's 40th anniversary. Disney Drive-In airs on Saturday afternoons and encores on Wednesday following Comedy Tonight!

DISNEYLAND AND TELEVISION

Shortly after construction began on Disneyland park in 1954, Walt Disney went on the air with his first television series—which was also called Disneyland. In fact, the park might not have been possible without television, because by agreeing to produce a weekly show for ABC, Walt was able to get a loan from the network which helped enable him to build the park. During that first season of the Disneyland series, Walt presented his viewers with two shows which detailed the progress of the construction in Anaheim. The shows had all of America anxiously anticipating the new park. Then, when the park premiered on July 17, 1955, it was inaugurated with a huge TV spectacular on ABC—at the time the largest live TV broadcast ever attempted. That live show—"Dateline Disneyland"—was fortunately preserved on kinescope (this was before the days of videotape), and Disney Channel viewers saw an exclusive rebroadcast on the date of the 30th anniversary of Disneyland in 1985. This year, viewers again will be able to tune in to this historic broadcast on July 15, and also see other shows which not only introduced Disneyland to the world but also chronicled later attractions, such as "From the Pirates of the Caribbean to The World of Tomorrow."

Summertime

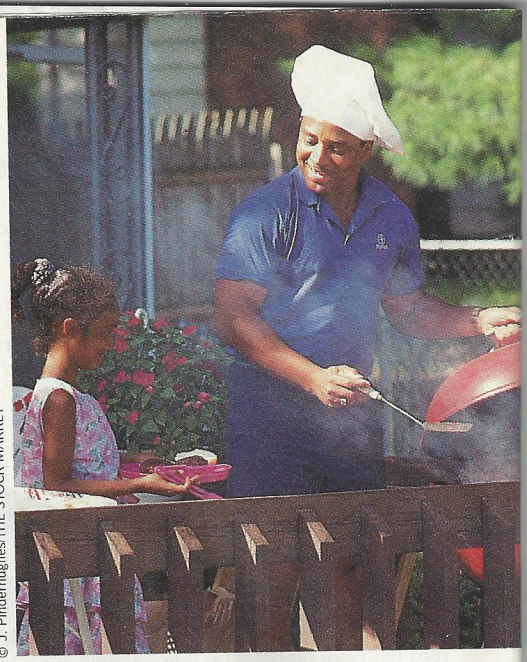

THERE'S NOTHING SUBTLE ABOUT THE WAY SUMMER strikes most families; the moment school is out, there's no mistaking the excitement and that sense of newfound freedom—at least for the children.

For many parents, keeping kids happy all summer long poses a real challenge, so be sure to read our article on "Day-Tripping." Exciting day trips can provide terrific respites for the whole family—especially for parents, who may not have more than a couple of weeks of summer vacation. You'll discover great ideas on how to turn even a local excursion into a memorable adventure.

And as for local attractions, few people realize that more people visit zoos than attend the games of all major professional sports combined. Learn how to tour any zoo successfully and how to turn such a foray into a great day for one and all.

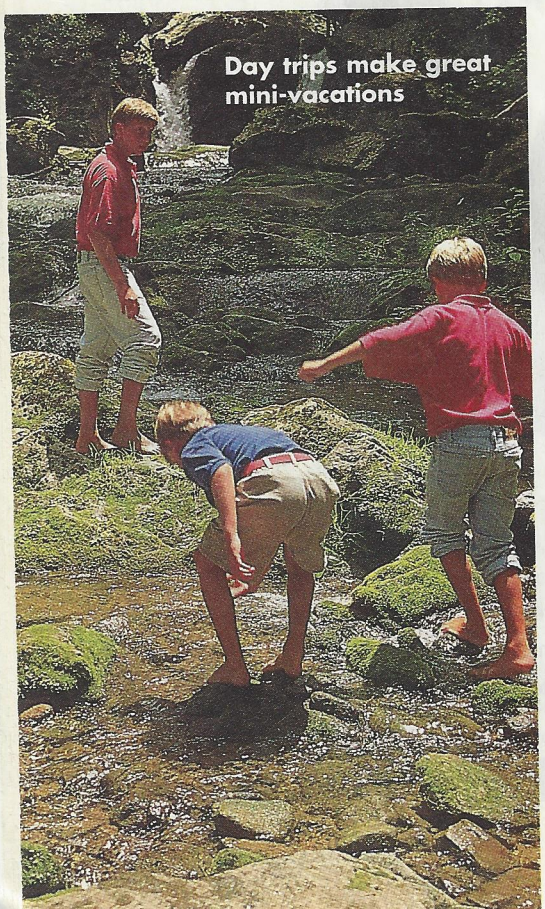

A big part of summer's pleasures are the wonderful, traditional foods—grilled chicken dinners with a salad or corn-on-the-cob, fruit pies, and homemade ice creams. Our recipes in this issue provide the mainstays for a fabulous-but-easy Fourth-of-July party.

However you choose to launch your summer, here's to the celebration of simple freedoms!

Day trips make great mini-vacations

SCOTT BARROW

Summer Fun
DAY-TRIPPING

Ultimately, the best part of any trip isn't seeing exotic sights or sampling foreign foods. Travel experts say it's the change of pace and the break in routine that people most crave.

That's the allure of even a day-long trip: it's a mini-vacation, a quick get-away, a change of pace—and it's easily do-able. "One of the main things all people need is change," says Dan Hallinan, who owns Traveling with Children, a Berkeley, California, travel agency for families.

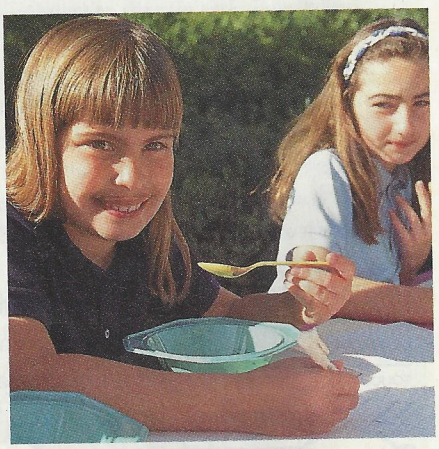

Hallinan says some of the most exciting and fun excursions are day trips, which can range from a short drive to a city you haven't explored to hiking in the country or taking a train to a special park for a picnic.

What can you do in a day? Often, families find they haven't been to some of the attractions that lie closest to home. Hallinan says his daughter still complains of never having had the chance to walk across the Golden Gate Bridge, for example.

Hallinan suggests getting a guide book on your area and searching it for fresh things to do. It's helpful to give your kids options: read some of the opportunities to them, or if they're old enough, encourage them to browse through the books themselves.

With younger children, Hallinan says, plan a balanced day. Mix faster-paced activities with something more restful. Or combine an hour or two at a museum or historical site with a few hours spent outdoors, flying a kite, or riding the merry-go-round. "Kids definitely need a chance to get some exercise and fresh air," Hallinan says.

One of the ways to promote spur-of-the-moment day trips is to keep the car

SUMMER SAFETY KIT

Summer Safety Kit: No matter where the family goes this summer, it's a good idea to carry along a first-aid kit. Look over the kit and be sure you know how and when to use the supplies. Ready-to-go kits are available in most drug stores for about $5 to $13; you can also put your own kit together in a lunch box that closes securely, but label it clearly.

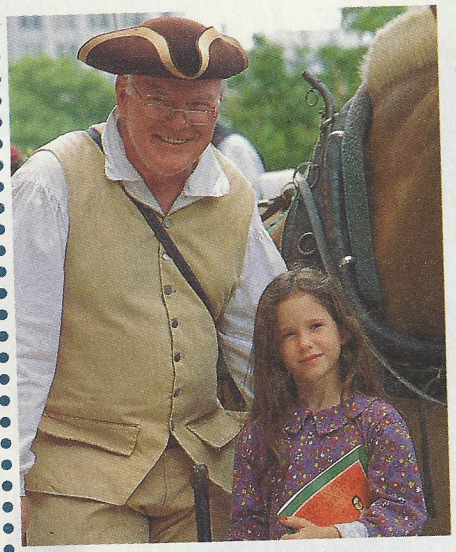

The American Medical Association recommends that a first-aid kit include adhesive bandages, aspirin or aspirin substitute, absorbent gauze bandages, foil or "space" blanket, triangular bandage, calamine lotion, roll of sterile cotton, adhesive tape, flashlight, elastic bandages, round-end tweezers, safety pins, snub-nosed scissors, antiseptic cream, antiseptic wipes, hydrogen peroxide (3% solution) or rubbing alcohol, and syrup of ipecac.

SCOTT BARROW

UNWANTED VISITORS

Beware of fleas in the summer months. To eliminate and prevent unwelcome pests, use these tactics: scrub dogs or cats with soaps that contain an appropriate insecticide and repeat the process periodically; change the pet's bedding frequently; destroy larvae by spraying or dusting the pet's quarters with an insecticide.

SCOTT BARROW

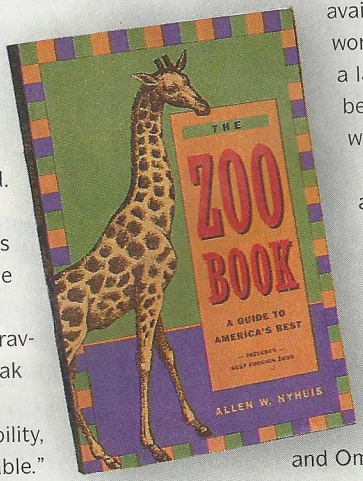

Often, families haven't been to attractions that lie close to home stocked for a last-minute getaway. Hallinan keeps a blanket, tablecloth, picnic basket, and some related items in his trunk year-round. "It's almost a license to go," he says.

Hallinan also suggests keeping a fanny pack or backpack for each child, filled with some car games and a small camera. Add juice boxes and snacks before you leave.

Some of the fun of any excursion—even a day trip—are the memories. Hallinan suggests putting together an album of photos, admission tickets, menus, and brochures afterward.

Some families find day trips more fun than longer adventures because they are less likely to be associated with the hassles and hard work that can come with traveling. "Day trips are a nicer break than any real vacation," says Hallinan. "They're low-responsibility, low-maintenance, and manageable."

ZOO TIME

Call it animal magnetism: more than 120 million people a year visit U.S. zoos—more people than attend professional baseball, football, hockey, and basketball games combined, according to Allen Nyhuis, author of The Zoo Book (Carousel Press, $14.95).

"Every zoo has a unique atmosphere," says Nyhuis. "It's not about seeing cage after cage of animals anymore; it's about experiencing an adventure." Zoo visitors can watch a rain forest of animals in Omaha, nibble on cajun food in New Orleans while observing the alligators, or penetrate the wilds of Africa in Dallas.

Nyhuis offers loads of tips on making the most of a zoo trip. He suggests calling or writing the zoo and requesting a map and a brochure about the facility, including current hours and admission charges. Parents can plan a route ahead of time, discussing with children what animals they will see and getting an idea of their top priorities. Don't forget to bring sun screen, binoculars and a camera with film. Wear comfortable shoes and a sun hat in summer.

At the zoo, Nyhuis recommends renting or bringing a stroller for small kids, since most zoos demand a full day of walking.

Plan to arrive early in the day to catch the animals before heat slows them down. Note the time and location of any animal shows or feedings, and plan accordingly. Shows vary from full-blown entertainment to simple demonstrations, but the size of the amphitheater can be a good gauge of potential appeal. Also entertaining are the trams that are often available; many offer a wonderful over-view of a larger zoo that may be impossible to cover with small children.

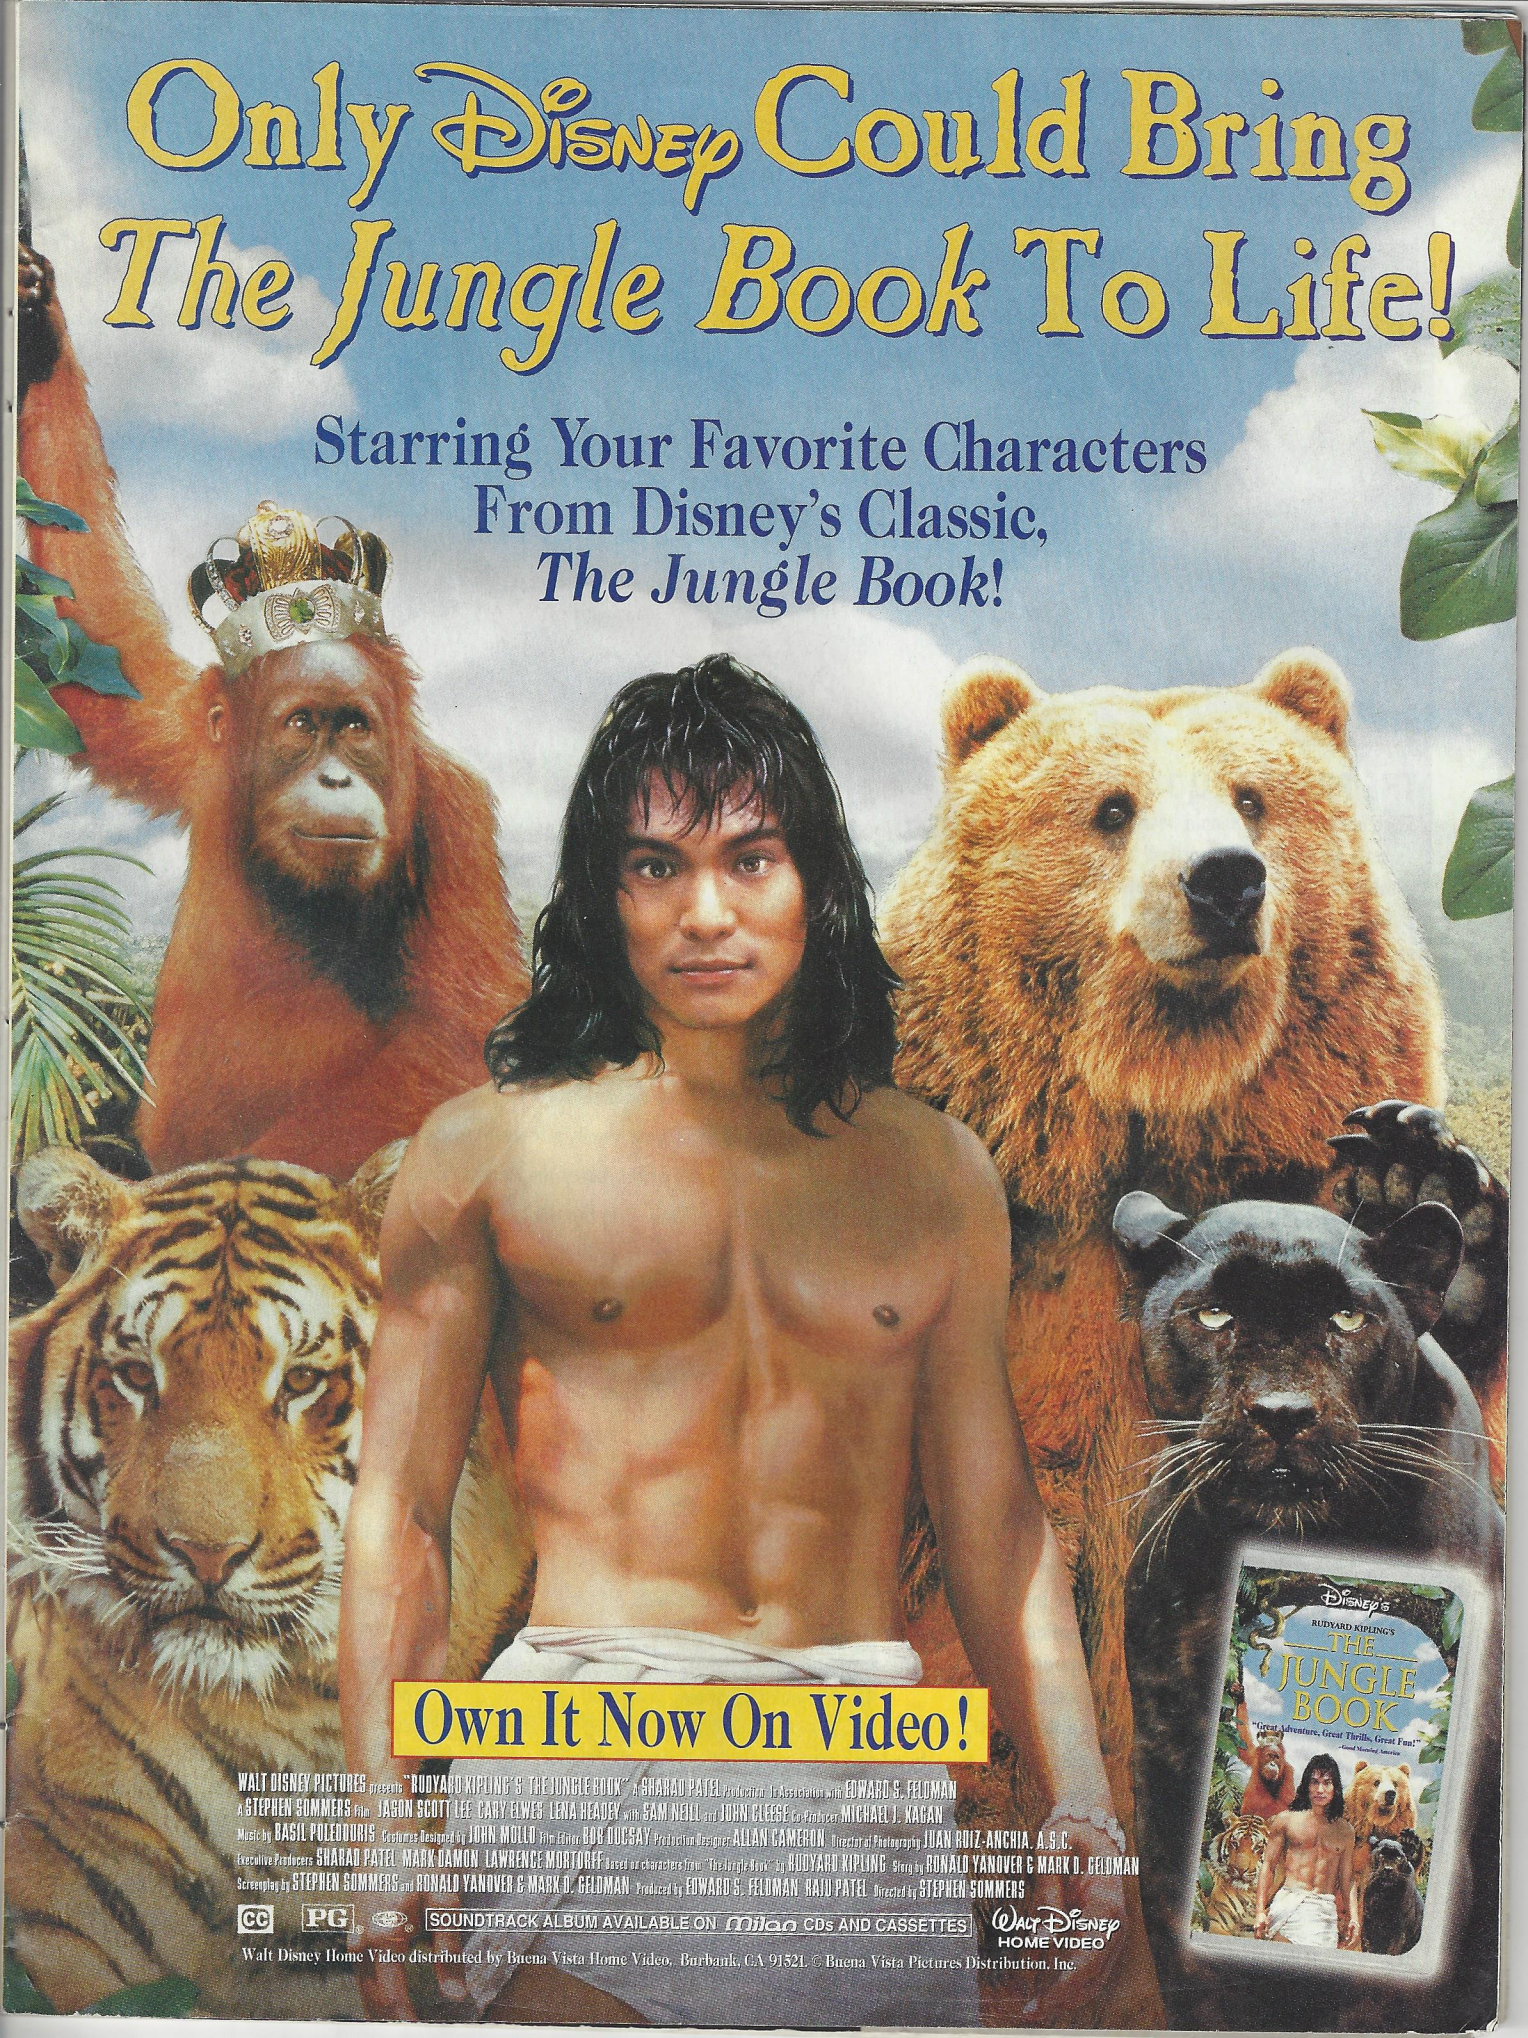

You can't feed the animals, but you can feed the family at a zoo. Nyhuis notes, for example, the Indianapolis Zoo's cafe features gibbons and lemurs as entertainment, and Omaha's Henry Doorly Zoos overlooks a large jungle. Zoos can also be fun places for picnics. (Some zoos do not allow visitors to bring in food; it's best to call ahead to check).

Most children love to stop at the gift shop, and Nyhuis encourages parents to spring for something interesting but inexpensive, like a plastic animal figurine, an animal pencil, or even post cards featuring favorite beasts.

Nyhuis urges parents not to overdo a zoo trip, wrapping up the day as soon as the children—or the adults—show signs of fatigue. Especially with younger kids, short visits are likely to be the most memorable.

THE PRIMAL ZOO

Since ancient times, people have put wild animals on display. The earliest known zoo was established by Queen Hatshepsut of Egypt, circa 1500 B.C. About 500 years later, the Chinese emperor Wen Wang founded the Garden of Intelligence, a 1,500 acre facility. In the U.S., the first zoos opened just after the Civil War in Philadelphia, New York, and Chicago.

FRIDGE FUN

Some say the outside of the refrigerator is the center of family life today: it's where everything from photos to notes, school papers, and reminders are displayed. Now there's a new fridge function: pure play. Michael Powell got the idea three years ago while working in an elementary school, watching how children love to put words together into sentences. He started Fridge Fun, in Guerneville, California, which sells word magnets that can be combined into clever combinations on the refrigerator door. Now available in more than 1,100 stores, the magnets are $7.95. Call (800) 845-8320.

MARINADES FOR A SUMMER GRILL

PLANNING TO GRILL CHICKEN FOR YOUR FOURTH OF JULY PICNIC? Marinate the chicken in one of the two recipes below so your bird picks up as much flavor as possible. On July 3, simply place your family's favorite chicken pieces in zippered plastic bags, add the sauce, then seal and refrigerate. Carry the chicken to the picnic in a cooler but remove it about 30 minutes before grilling. Grill the chicken over a bed of medium-hot coals, turning occasionally and basting frequently until done—about 20 to 25 minutes.

BOMBS-BURSTING BARBECUE SAUCE

- 2 tablespoons olive oil
- 1 small onion finely chopped
- 2 cloves garlic, minced
- 3 to 4 jalapeno peppers, stemmed, seeded, and minced
- 1 tablespoon chili powder
- 3/4 cup catsup
- 1/3 cup brown sugar, packed
- 1 (8 ounce) can tomato sauce
- 2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce
- salt and pepper
- Liquid smoke seasoning (optional)

In a large saucepan, heat oil over medium high heat. Add onion and garlic; saute until tender. Stir in peppers and continue to cook for 1 minute. Stir in chili powder, catsup, brown sugar, tomato sauce and Worcestershire sauce. Reduce heat and simmer for 15 minutes, stirring occasionally. Season to taste with salt and pepper and smoke seasoning (if desired). Makes enough for 6 pounds of chicken pieces.

GARLIC-BALSAMIC MARINADE

- 1 cup olive oil
- 6 tablespoons balsamic vinegar
- 1/2 small onion, coarsely chopped
- 4 cloves garlic, coarsely chopped
- 1 1/2 teaspoons dried thyme, oregano, or tarragon
- salt and pepper

In a food processor or blender, combine all ingredients. Process until blended; season to taste with salt and pepper. Makes enough marinade for 5 pounds of chicken pieces.

FOURTH OF JULY AMERICAN PIE

JUST AS SURE AS ROCKETS WILL GLARE, the finale to a Fourth of July picnic is certainly the occasion for baking a blue-ribbon apple pie. To make it apple pie ala mode ala American, crank up some not-so-plain vanilla ice cream that explodes with crunchy ripples of cinnamon streusel.

For a tart flavor, bake your "red, white and blue" pie with green apples—pippins or Granny Smiths, for example. Remember, it's not un-American to use a ready-made and pre-rolled pie crust—you'll find it in the refrigerated section of your supermarket. That gives you the time to create a star-spangled crust for your pie, using a small cookie cutter. Let the kids do the cutting up here.

Ice cream screamers of all ages will want to cut in when it's time to churn the ice cream. And whether you use an old-fashioned bucket or a new-fangled electric dream machine, invite everyone around to fight for a lick of the dasher.

FOURTH OF JULY AMERICAN PIE (APPLE, OF COURSE)

- 7 to 8 tart apples, peeled, cored, and sliced
- 3/4 cup sugar
- 2 tablespoons cornstarch
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- 1 teaspoon grated lemon peel
- ready-made pastry for a 9-inch, double-crust pie
- 2 tablespoons butter
- milk
- additional sugar

In a large bowl, combine the apples, sugar, and cornstarch. Stir to blend. Allow to stand for 15 minutes, then stir in lemon juice and peel.

Preheat oven to 425 degrees F.

Fit bottom pastry into a 9-inch pie plate. Transfer apple mixture to pie shell, piling high in the center. Dot with butter. Moisten rim of crust, then cover with top crust. Trim the overhang evenly. Roll crust edge under and finish as desired. Cut vents in top crust using a small cookie cutter or with a very sharp knife. Brush with milk. Bake for 15 minutes, then reduce oven temperature to 350 degrees F and bake 35 to 40 minutes longer. If desired, 5 minutes before pie is done, brush crust again with milk and sprinkle with sugar. Serves 8.

ALISON DUKE

CINNAMON STREUSEL ICE CREAM

- 3 egg yolks
- 2 cups whipping cream
- 1 1/2 cups milk
- 1 cup sugar
- 2 teaspoons vanilla
- cinnamon streusel

In a large bowl, whisk egg yolks until slightly thickened. Set aside.

In a saucepan, combine cream, milk, and sugar. Bring to a gentle boil over medium-high heat, stirring to dissolve the sugar.

Whisk about 1 cup of hot mixture into the egg yolks, then whisk egg yolk mixture back into the pan. Cook, stirring constantly, until the mixture is thick enough to coat the back of a spoon. Pour through a fine sieve into a large bowl. Stir in vanilla Cool slightly, then cover with plastic wrap and refrigerate for at least 4 hours and up to 2 days.

Freeze in an ice cream maker according to the manufacturer's instructions. Transfer ice cream to a freezer container and gently stir in cinnamon streusel just until marbleized. Cover lightly and freeze 1/2 to 2 hours before serving.
Makes 1 quart.

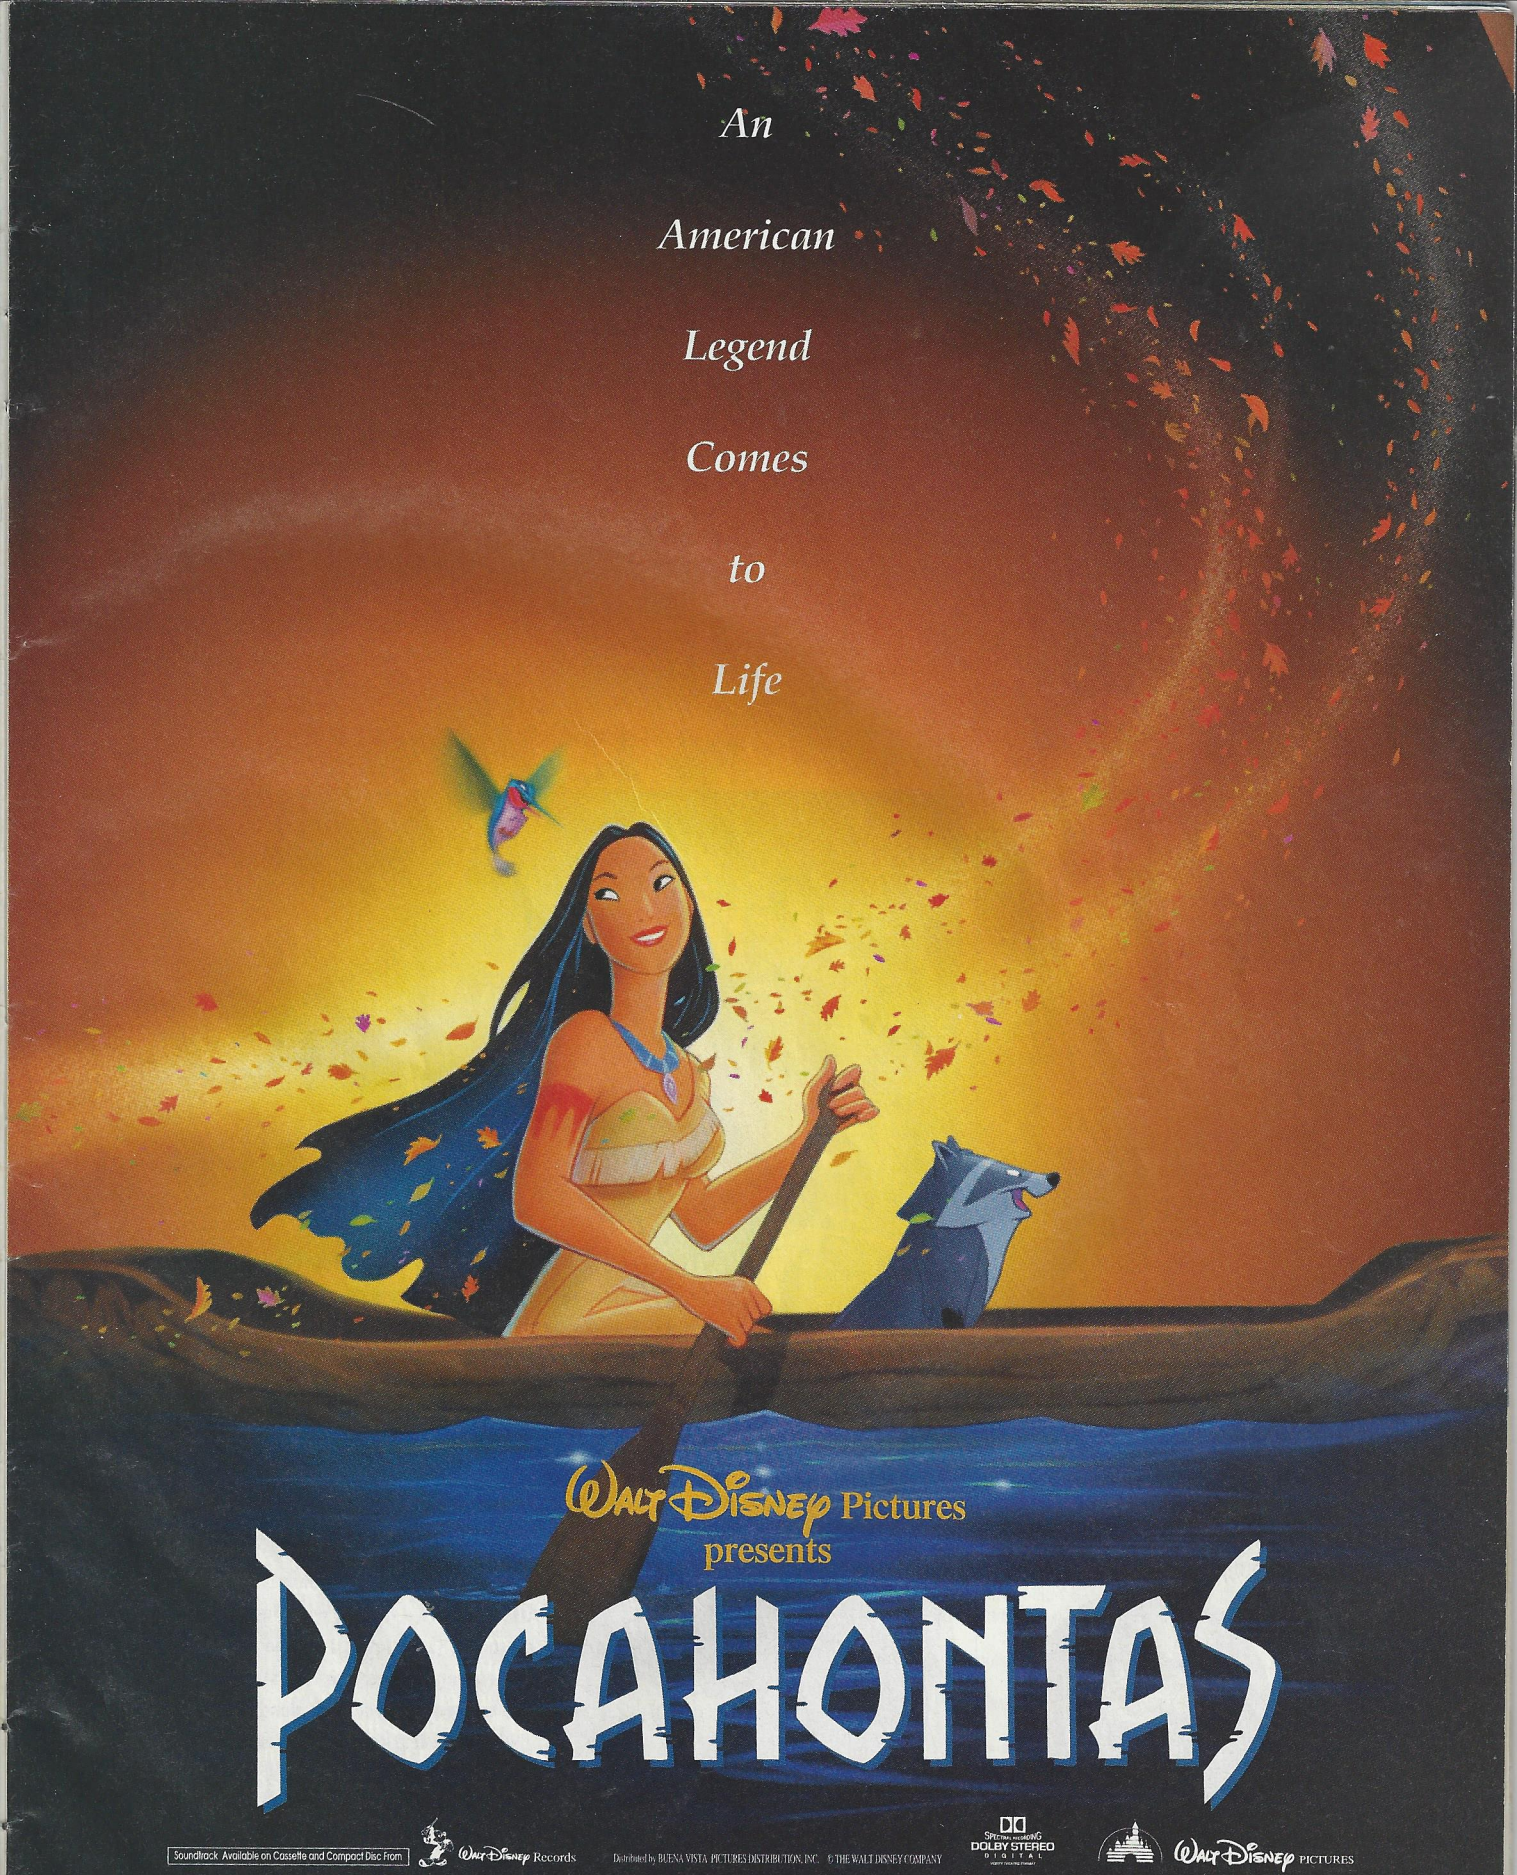

NOTE: To add extra smoothness and volume to homemade ice cream, make the mixture a day ahead and refrigerate. After churning, ripen the ice cream in an airtight container in the freezer from 1/2 to 2 hours.

CINNAMON STREUSEL

- 1/2 cup light brown sugar, packed
- 2/3 cup all-purpose flour
- 1 tablespoon cinnamon
- 1/4 cup butter

Preheat oven to 300 degrees F.

In a medium bowl, mix the brown sugar with the flourand cinnamon. Using knives or a pastry blender, cut in the butter until the mixture is crumbly. Spread evenly on a baking sheet. Bake for 5 minutes, stirring several times. Watch carefully to prevent burning. Cool, then break up any large clumps that may have formed.

Celebrating A Century Of Fine Collector's Plates

1995 marks the 100th anniversary of limited-edition collector's plates, and The Bradford Exchange, a leading developer and marketer of the popular art form, is celebrating with a year-long salute. One of the highlights will be a one-of-a-kind exhibit of plates at the Bradford Museum of Collector's Plates, located in Niles, Illinois. For the past seven years, to the delight of collectors everywhere, scenes from Disney's full-length animated movies have been depicted on porcelain plates. The 12 series featuring Disney masterpieces began with the eight-plate Cinderella series. Next to be introduced was Pinocchio, followed in 1990 by Fantasia.

The Magic Carpet Ride, 1993

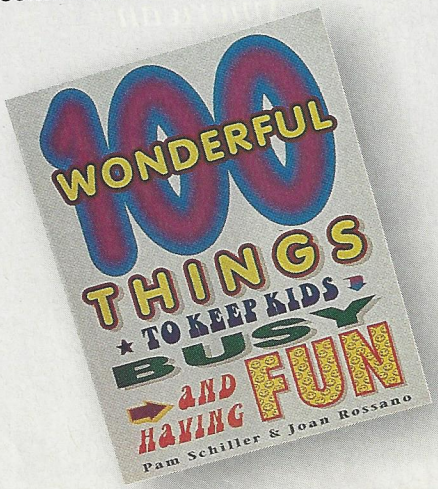

Disney favorites featuring leading characters from the animal kingdom have also starred on Bradford plates. The sweet, wide-eyed wonder of "Bambi," the delightful romance of "Lady and The Tramp," and the adorable antics of "101 Dalmatians" have all inspired plate series. The newest series available features memorable scenes from Disney's latest animated sensation, The Lion King.

100 WONDERFUL THINGS

FOR PARENTS IN NEED of quick ideas to give their three-to-seven-year olds something fun to do during those long, lazy days of summer, there's 100 Wonderful Things to Keep Kids Busy and Having Fun by Pam Schiller and Joan Rossano (Tricycle Press, $9.95). Ideas are inexpensive and educational: making soda fizz—a simple science experiment mixing baking soda and vinegar; creating paper towel art, using food coloring and water on paper towels or coffee filters; crafting pine cone and peanut butter bird feeders; making construction paper chains or a newspaper grass skirt.

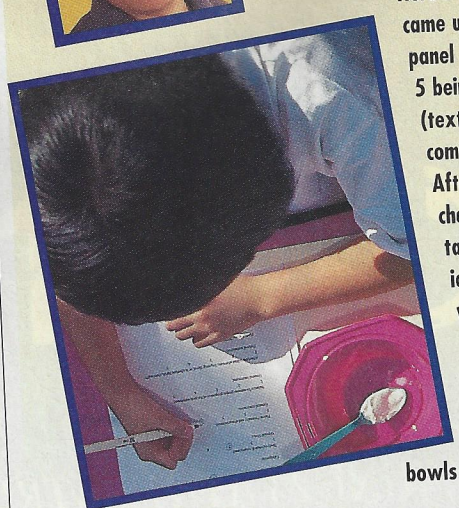

ICE CREAM TASTE TEST!

A PARTY WITH A TWIST? We gathered together six junior gourmets—three nine-year-olds and three 12-year-olds—for an ice cream taste test. It was simple to do, the kids had fun, and so did we. Holding your own taste test is simple. Here's what we did. First, we came up with tasting notes to fill out. Our gourmet panel rated each ice cream on a scale from 1–5, with 5 being best, in four different categories: Body (texture and creaminess); Flavor (intensity and components); Balance/Sweetness; and finally Aftertaste. Two flavors were tasted, vanilla and chocolate. (Each tester received approximately one tablespoon of ice cream to taste.) For the actual ice cream, we chose four blends easily available where the test took place: Ben and Jerry's, Haagen Daz, Baskin Robbins, and Dreyers. The test was conducted blind. The biggest fun: having our junior gourmets guess which ice cream was which—and taking requests for bowls of everyone's favorite ice cream afterwards.

A SPECIAL EVENING WITH

ELTON JOHN

Elton John offers up an intimate concert that includes his classic tunes, personal favorites, and the hit single from his new album "Made in England."

BY MR. BONZAI

THIS JEWEL BOX OF A CONCERT opens with "Your Song," setting the stage for an intimate excursion with the one and only Elton John. "That was the song that 25 years ago broke me in America," Elton John explains. This Disney Channel special is a "different sort of show," he adds, "playing some of the songs that I haven't played for a long time."

Effortlessly reminding us of his genius as singer, improvisational pianist and composer, Elton reinvents familiar hits and polishes up some old gems: "Levon" and "Indian Sunset" (1971), "Daniel" (1973), "Don't Let The Sun Go Down On Me" (1974); and "Sorry Seems To Be The Hardest Word" (1976). You'll also experience the classic "Bennie And The Jets" in boogie-woogie mode, the haunting "Candle In The Wind," and "Crocodile Rock" performed in a way you've never heard before. The concert also features Elton's Lion King hit (written with Tim Rice) "Can You Feel The Love Tonight," plus the hit single "Believe" from his new album Made In England.

Unlike the mammoth extravaganzas he is best known for, Elton John sits alone at the grand piano on this special evening, accompanied only by the extraordinary percussionist Ray Cooper. Elton is iridescent in his flaming red suit as Cooper athletically moves from congas to cymbals, banging the gong, tickling the vibes, and getting more from a tambourine than seems musically possible. "I'm trying to create the image of a complete band," says Cooper. The two of them build a musical powerhouse that must be seen to be believed.

Once dubbed the "Liberace of Rock" for his outrageous costumes, whimsical spectacles and flamboyant stage persona, Elton John was born Reginald Kenneth Dwight in Middlesex, England, on March 25, 1947. He took piano lessons as a child and his precocious talent won him a scholarship to attend the Royal Academy of Music. As a student Elton proved more interested in playing records and watching football than studying: he abruptly dropped out of school in 1965, two weeks shy of his final school exams.

The unassuming future superstar took a day job as a messenger with a music publishing company and at night sang and played piano in a pub. Tips allowed him to buy an electric piano, and he formed his first band, The Corvettes, which later became Bluesology. The band became a mainstay in London's club circuit, backing up such visiting stars as Patti Labelle, Doris Troy, and The Drifters. Next came two years with Long John Baldry on the cabaret circuit. Thinking that Reg Dwight was a name that sounded like a "library assistant," he became Elton John, taking the Elton from their saxophonist Elton Dean and the John from Baldry.

In 1967, Elton answered an ad by Liberty Records asking for "Artistes/Composers and Singer-Musicians." His audition was rocky—Elton was too nervous to perform his own material—but he made a nice impression and was given lyrics sent in by a young poet named Bernie Taupin. The two corresponded but didn't actually meet until Elton had composed the music for 20 of Bernie's poems. The lads were signed as writers and began a creative partnership that endures to this day.

In 1969, Elton auditioned as lead singer of the group King Crimson, but was turned down. Luckily, his debut album Empty Sky touched a few hearts, and he recorded "Your Song" for his self-titled second album. A 1970 Top Ten hit in both England and America, the album went Top Five, as did his third album, a dreamy collection with images of the Old West called Tumbleweed Connection, released just six months later.

Elton would perform that year on England's Top Of The Pops and make his American debut at the 20th anniversary celebrations at the famed Troubadour in Los Angeles. His initial impact on American audiences struck deeply, and his Prince Valiant hairdo was well remembered. Next came a live album, plus his soundtrack for the movie Friends, and then the smash album Mad Man Across The Water in 1971. The following year, Elton debuted his trio of Nigel Olsson, drums; Dee Murray, bass; and Davey Johnstone, guitar. Their chemistry was perfect: his next six albums all rocketed to #1: Honky Chateau (1972), Don't Shoot Me, I'm Only The Piano Player (1973), Goodbye Yellow Brick Road (1973), Caribou (1974), Captain Fantastic And The Brown Dirt Cowboy (1975), and Rock Of The Westies (1975). At one point it was estimated that 2% of all records sold in the world were by Elton John!

AT ONE POINT IT WAS ESTIMATED THAT 2% OF ALL RECORDS SOLD IN THE WORLD WERE BY ELTON JOHN.

IN 1974, ELTON ASKED JOHN LENNON for permission to record "Lucy In The Sky With Diamonds." Lennon played guitar as Dr. Winston O'Boogie and made a bet to join Elton on stage in the unlikely event that it reached the top of the charts. When it hit #1, Lennon joined him in NYC at Madison Square Garden for what would be his very last public performance.

That same year Elton starred as the Pinball Wizard in the film version of The Who's Tommy. In 1976, he released Blue Moves, which yielded another international hit "Sorry Seems To Be The Hardest Word," featured in this special. Elton had become one of the most famous and highest paid entertainers in history, continually surprising audiences with more and more outrageous costumes and even more inventive musicianship.

In 1977, after years of exhausting tours and massive stadium concerts, he chose to tone down his shows and played a series of dates accompanied only by percussionist Ray Cooper. It was a remarkable teaming, reprised in this historic Disney special. In November of that year he threatened to retire, but returned to the stage briefly in 1978 to perform with Eric Clapton, and in 1979 he became the first Western rock star to play Moscow. The Eighties were a tumultuous decade filled with memorable songs, bold concerts—and a series of personal misadventures that ultimately led to a Nineties Elton John who is as fit and as creative as ever.

In this outing, stripped down to its bare musical bones, Elton John's work shines with poignancy and artfulness. The poetry especially lingers, and his lyricist since the beginning, Bernie Taupin, says, "For me, this show is like having your children put under a microscope."

Before launching into yet another gem, "The One," Elton says of Bernie, "We're a team and we always will be." A testament to the timelessness of their work together, this Disney Channel special proves that the songs hold up as strongly as ever, resonating more powerfully under such intimate scrutiny.

VISIONS OF POCAHONTAS

BY
AMY BOOTHE GREEN

CUT TO THE SPRING OF 1991: Aladdin, Disney's 31st animated classic, has barely begun production while The Lion King has just entered the first stage of development. But already artists and executives—including veteran animator Glen Keane—are gathering to discuss ideas for the studio's 33rd animated feature. At their brainstorming meeting, fondly referred to as "The Gong Show," concepts are quickly tossed around—and just as quickly rejected.

As "The Gong Show" progresses, director Mike Gabriel stands up and presents the crowd with a color poster he's created. "Ladies and Gentlemen," Gabriel announces. "Walt Disney Presents... Pocahontas. A story about a Native American princess torn between her love for her father and people and her love for the enemy: an English adventurer named John Smith."

"The idea sold in an instant," Glen Keane remembers. "I can't remember anything happening that quickly."

And shortly thereafter, Keane found himself named the supervising animator for the title character. At the time he was working on the animation of Aladdin. And although Keane had created such memorable characters as Ariel in The Little Mermaid and the Beast of Beauty and the Beast, still he felt unprepared for the task of creating Pocahontas.

"I knew it was going to be hard for me because it was a real love story," Keane says. "For me, the film's been like walking in the dark—this kind of subtlety of acting along with sensitive storytelling. We just haven't done it before."

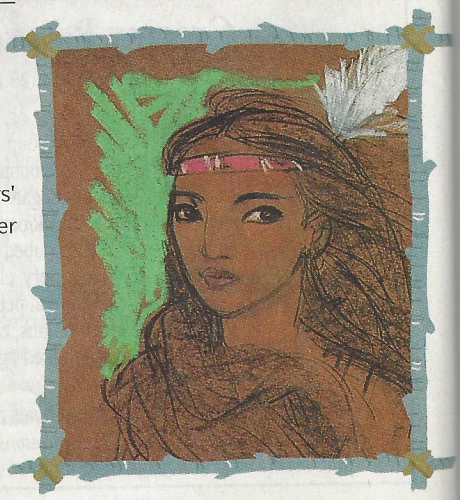

Pocahontas, of course, is based on an historical figure rather than a fairy tale—another first in Disney animation—and Keane says he felt moved to treat the character with an unusual dignity and integrity. Where an animator may rely on imagination and certain tricks of the trade in developing a character, this time Keane knew the task would require even more depth and involvement.

In order to "know" Pocahontas and to create a unique, classical and ethnic beauty, Keane felt he must go to the source, to the roots of the Powhatan tribal princess. So he traveled to Jamestown, Virginia, where the story had unfolded nearly 400 years before. There Keane visited a recreation of the Powhatan village and a museum that housed tribal artifacts. But his ultimate inspiration came in the form of two young Native American women.

Keane recalls: "I was looking for something that would inspire me. As I was walking through the woods I was imagining: 'Maybe this is where John Smith and Pocahontas met. Maybe over there, on that little hill, they saw the very same river I'm seeing now.'

"Then I heard this voice calling through the woods," Keane says. "'Excuse me, excuse me. You're the animator that's doing Pocahontas, aren't you?" Keane found himself facing two young women—sisters—who introduced themselves: "We're descendants of Pocahontas."

As they chatted, Keane noted the sisters' personalities. One sister was a very traditional and spiritual person devoted to preserving her people's history. The other sister preferred the excitement of traveling around the world in her profession as an airline flight attendant.

When the task of creating Pocahontas fell to animator Glen Keane, he knew he was facing the greatest challenge of his career.

Keane photographed the two women and kept the picture above his desk to remind him that the clue to Pocahontas' personality lay somewhere between their differing outlooks.

"Pocahontas is very deeply rooted and spiritually grounded," Keane says. "She's very traditional, responsible, dignified. The other side of her is adventurous: She's not afraid to break with tradition and fall in love with John Smith—or to go against her father and save John's life.

"I've gone deeper with this character than with the Beast or with Aladdin or with Ariel," Keane adds. "She's so intriguing. I feel I'm sort of her conscience."

As Keane developed insight into Pocahontas, he had to decide how to reveal that personality through her persona. In the early stages of design, he admits that Pocahontas proved elusive. He would catch glimpses of her in his drawings, and then, like a ghost, she would vanish.

"Every time I drew her, I came up with a different drawing. It was weird. It was like she would appear sometimes: 'That's her! Yes, that's her!' It's as if she were a real person. Every once in a while she'd appear and then be gone. I talked with the writers and they said they experienced the same thing."

At one point, Keane obtained a copy of an original drawing of Pocahontas. The drawing was crude. "I thought, 'Well, maybe this artist was better at drawing maps.' So, I did our version of Pocahontas over the top. Actually, it's amazing how close the design of our Pocahontas is to that drawing. It's striking."

The guiding principle that Keane and his team of 17 animators followed in animating Pocahontas was that "less is more."

Gabriel, who co-directed the film along with Eric Goldberg, explains, "The acting and what's going on in the character's eyes are more important in this movie than the character's body attitude."

One night, at the dinner table, Keane decided to test the "less is more" theory on his unsuspecting wife, Linda. So he sat over his dinner plate ever so slightly twitching his mouth. Suddenly, wrinkling her nose, Linda asked, "What are you doing?"

Keane cheered: "You saw it, didn't you?! If I move just a little bit, you'll see it!"

While Pocahontas, which means "Little Mischief," has provided Keane with his greatest challenge to date, a continuous thread runs through all of his characters: motivation.

"What inspires me about any character that I work on is still the same thing, whether it be Beast, Aladdin, Ariel, or Pocahontas," Keane says. "Inside each of them, there's a burning desire of some sort that drives them. Pocahontas has a calling: she knows she's being called for something, but she doesn't know what it is. She thinks it's John Smith when she meets him. In the end, we discover it wasn't him. It was the larger goal of keeping the peace."

WORLD PREMIERE

ANNE FRANK REMEMBERED

ON JUNE 8, THE DISNEY CHANNEL IS PROUD TO PRESENT the world premiere of a remarkable documentary film. Anne Frank Remembered uses moving, first-person accounts to illuminate the life and legacy of the inspiring teenager. Narrated by Kenneth Branagh, Anne Frank Remembered also features Glenn Close reading excerpts from the newly re-translated best seller "Diary of a Young Girl." In addition, the documentary includes remarkable film footage—long thought to have been lost—of Anne Frank herself.

Since the publication of her famous diary, Anne Frank's words have made her a worldwide symbol of the courage and the resilience of the human spirit amid the horrors of the Holocaust. To her friends, however, Anne Frank was a living, breathing person, and this special reveals the complex young woman behind the symbol.

To capture that story fully, Anne Frank Remembered relies exclusively on the eyewitness accounts of those who knew her best—her family, friends, relatives, classmates, and finally, her fellow concentration camp inmates. Many of the interviews were conducted at the original sites where the events took place, including Anne Frank's school, the Franks' hiding place in Amsterdam, and the concentration camps at Auschwitz and Bergen-Belsen, where Anne Frank perished three weeks before the camp was liberated. The film is also the first production to be made with the cooperation of The Anne Frank House Amsterdam, which provided the filmmakers with access to the secret annex where Anne and others sought refuge from the Nazi terror.

Anne Frank Remembered is an extraordinary, profound, and inspiring film. It serves not just as a memorial to one victim of the Holocaust, but as an act of remembrance for the uncounted millions who perished, and for those who survived.

WORLD PREMIERE

LITTLE LORD FAUNTLEROY

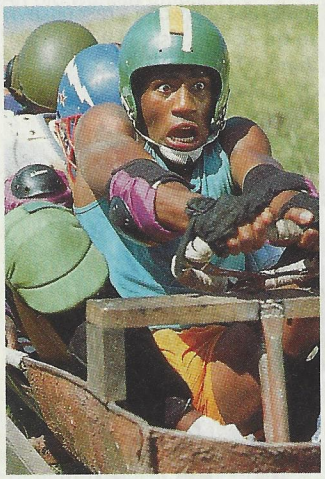

LOVED "THE OLD CURIOSITY SHOP"? Can't wait to see that special encore presentation of "Heidi"? Have a taste for costume dramas boasting great locations? Then let us recommend the world premiere of Little Lord Fauntleroy. This version of Frances Hodgson Burnett's classic tale—created especially for The Disney Channel—is a story of inheritance and deceit as an American lad discovers he's the heir of the earl of Dorincourt. It's a first rate entertainment complete with castles, snooty English aristocrats, elegant costumes—and a story that has tugged at the heartstrings and jerked tears ever since it was first published.

FAMILY CLASSICS

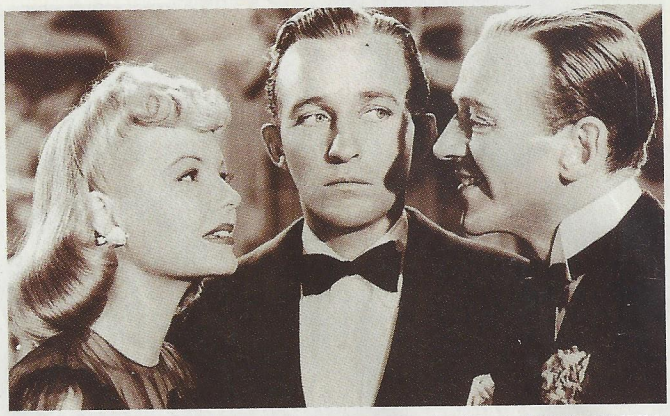

OUR DISNEY ANIMATION CELEBRATION

EACH MONTH, THE MAGICAL WORLD OF DISNEY presents a Disney animated classic. In June and July, our animation celebration features two films from quite distinct periods in the history of Disney animation. On June 11, we're proud to present Dumbo, the fourth animated feature from the Disney Studio, and one of the all-time greats in the Disney pantheon. On July 16, we move forward in time two decades—to 1963 to be precise—for The Sword in the Stone. While Disney's 18th animated classic is perhaps not of the same stature as Dumbo, The Sword in the Stone features a great moment in Disney animation: the sorcerers' duel between Merlin and Madame Mim. It's an eye-popping tour de force—and you have to love those wonderful Disney villainesses.

WORLD PREMIERE

THE MUSIC OF KRIS KRISTOFFERSON

SOMEWHERE NEAR SALINAS LORD, I let her slip away..." Critics and historians may find it convenient to label Kris Kristofferson as part of the Outlaw movement, that group which transformed country music in the late '60s and early '70s. But Kristofferson's work has always transcended musical genre, and he must be considered one of the premiere songwriters of the age. With the world premiere of Kris Kristofferson: Songwriter, The Disney Channel renders a portrait of an uncompromising artist. In the course of the program, Kristofferson revisits old haunts, recalls the writing of his songs, and sings many of his timeless hits. The music includes "Me and Bobby McGee," "Sunday Morning Coming Down," "Help Me Make It Through the Night," and "The Promise," a new work from Kristofferson's upcoming album. In addition to the artist's reminiscences, Kris Kristofferson: Songwriter features interview segments with Johnny Cash, Willie Nelson, Dennis Hopper, Joan Baez, and Jackson Browne (who also performs Kristofferson's "El Mal Secate").

MACKENZIE ASTIN STARS IN THE DISNEY ADVENTURE IRON WILL

FOR MACKENZIE ASTIN, playing the lead role in the Disney adventure epic Iron Will marked his return to acting. Astin, the son of Patty Duke and John Astin, appeared for three seasons on the hit sitcom "Facts of Life" before taking a hiatus to finish high school. Thus Astin tackled the heroic role of Will Stoneman with great enthusiasm and verve. (In the film, Will must enter and win a grueling dog sled race to save his family from catastrophe.) "I loved the purity of the character," Mackenzie Astin explains, "how simple the motives are that drive him, literally, on the sled and in the race. It's a great contrast to the cool, jaded attitude that so many young people seem to cultivate today."

SWASHBUCKLING ANTICS OF THE THREE MUSKETEERS

WHAT'S INVOLVED IN SHOOTING A SWASHBUCKLING adventure set in 17th century France? For the stars of The Three Musketeers it meant stunts, stunts, stunts. Chris O'Donnell dangled from the roof of a palace—100 feet above the ground—in one scene. And then there was all that swordplay, swordplay, swordplay. "We practiced our swordfighting for six weeks before we tried the main sequences," Kiefer Sutherland recalls. "Our swordplay looks dangerous but it was safe," adds Oliver Platt. "It was like a dance." And finally there were all of those scenes on horseback—which proved Charlie Sheen's least favorite part of the film. "The ponies and I don't get along," says Sheen. "Never did and never will. They are unpredictable beasts. I had to ride them but never liked it. If it was up to me, I'd never go near them. But take Kiefer," Sheen adds. "You'd think he was born in the saddle."
